DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

The applicants traverse of the election requirement has been considered. Upon review of the restriction requirement made by the Examiner, it was found that Claims 17-22 should have been included in group II not group I. The claims of group II and III would indeed require a different search as they are claiming the specifics of the compression algorithm used by the Applicant, classified in a different class and subclass. Therefore the Restriction is proper and upheld. The Applicant elected the invention of group I, thus group I, consisting of claims 1-7, 23-27 and new claims 32-36 have been considered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

2. Claims 1-7, 23-27, 33, 34, and 36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Wood et al.

Claim 1, 23, 33: A system for transmitting data representing a video image, comprising:

a. a medical test device for generating the video image; (See Wood figure 1 items 12 and 20.)

b. a transmitter coupled to the medical test device for receiving and selectively distributing data representing the video image; and (See Wood figure 1 item 32 a modem is a transmitter.)

c. one or more remote receivers for communicating with the transmitter and configured to receive the data representing the video image from the transmitter. (See Wood abstract) claim 23 is further limited to remote control of the device, (See Abstract)

Claim 2. The system according to claim 1 wherein the transmitter further comprises a compressor configured for compressing the data representing the video image. thereby forming a compressed stream of data. (See Wood column 10 lines 7-9)

Claim 3: The system according to claim 2 wherein the one or more receivers further comprise a decompressor configured for returning the compressed stream of data into an uncompressed state. (See Wood column 10 lines 7-9 if data is compressed when transmitted, a decompressor on the receiving side is inherent.)

Claim 4: The system according to claim 1 further comprising a recorder device coupled to the medical test device and configured for storing the data representing the video image generated by the medical test device. (See column 12 line 63 through column 13 line 5)

Claim 5, 24: The system according to claim 1 wherein the medical test device is one of an ultrasound, a sonogram, an echocardiogram, and an angioplastigram. (See Wood abstract)

Claim 6, 25: The system according to claim 1 further comprising a network coupled between the transmitter and the one or more receivers for transporting the data representing the video image. (See Wood abstract.)

Claim 7, 26: The system according to claim 6 wherein the network is an Internet Protocol network. (See Wood columns 5 and 6.)

Claim 27, 34: The system according to claim 23 wherein the user remotely controls parameters of the plurality of video images including frame rate and frame size. (See column 10 lines 10-39)

Art Unit: 2613

Claim 36. A system of claim 33 wherein said control command allows the remote user to start or stop the transmission of said video. See column 11, starting and stopping transmission of images is an inherent feature.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 32 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wood.

Claim 32. The system of claim 23, said system further comprising:

d. a robotic device coupled to said transmitter, wherein said transmitter is configured to control said robotic device, and wherein said transmitter is configured to receive control commands from said user, and wherein at least one of said video images comprises a substantially live video, whereby said remote receiver receives and displays said live video substantially in real time, and whereby the remote user can control said robotic device with control commands while viewing said live video. See Wood column 11 lines 35-59 wherein Wood teaches that his system is capable of controlling the system remotely. While he does say that he needs a pair of hands at the patient location, it is clear that the hands are not those of the physician. Thus the physician remotely controls the imaging device. The use of a robotic device is interpreted as making the system automatic thus not needing a second person. However, case law has previously settled that "it is not invention to broadly provide a mechanical or automatic means to replace manual activity which can accomplish the same result" In re Rundell, 18 CCPA 1290, 48 f.28 958, 9 USPQ 220. In this case a robotic arm would accomplish the same result as that of a person.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

5. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

6. Claim 35 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. There is no mention of a single transmitter containing a plurality of video compressors in the specification. Thus a selection between a plurality of compressors by the remote user is impossible within the scope of the current invention. An introduction of a transmitter containing multiple compressors would constitute the addition of new matter into the specification. For this new matter to be entered, the Applicant must file a CIP of the current application.

Claim 35. A system of claim 33 wherein the transmitter further comprises a plurality of video compressors and, wherein said control command allows the remote user to select or change the selection of one of the plurality of video compressors to be used by the transmitter to process said digitized frames.
